

Don't you love when the education system tries to act like they care, only to expect you to prioritize education over your mental wellbeing?