

Evaluate the worldview of people from the past by completing the chart.

Some People's Point of View

"Some went further than wanting to see black people freed from these unfair laws. They wanted to see black Americans treated equally with white Americans. This view was not popular at this time" (from Student Text page 165).

Write about their point of view.

They wanted black slaves to be free and for equality to be among the people.

The Biblical Point of View

Read Genesis 1:26-28.

Write what the Bible teaches about humans and the rights God gives to them.

God made all humans in his image equally and with the same rights.

My Point of View

Compare the two views. What do you think a Christian's attitude should be about the equality of black Americans?

Write your conclusion using evidence found in the Bible.

It is found in Galatians 3:28. It says that everyone should be free no matter your race or gender. I think Christians should be open to no slaves.

Howard on Freedmen's Rights

Headed by "the Christian General," O. O. Howard, the Freedmen's Bureau originally concerned itself with aiding black Americans in the South, distributing food and clothing, and building schools for black children. Howard seemed to sincerely seek the good of the freedmen and the country—fighting both the freedmen's poverty and illiteracy and the prejudices of Northerners and Southerners. Around the year 1865, Howard wrote about the freedmen's rights.

→ can't read

Read the excerpt.

Freedmen's Rights

The rights of the freedman, which are not yet secured to him, are the direct reverse of the wrongs committed against him. I never could conceive how a man could become a better laborer by being made to carry an over-heavy and wearisome burden which in no way facilitates his work. I never could detect the shadow of a reason why the color of the skin should impair the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

—Oliver Otis Howard

Use complete sentences to write the meaning of the excerpt in your own words.

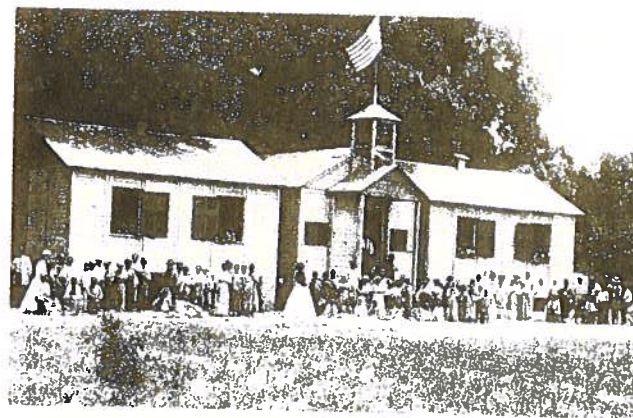

The meaning of this excerpt is that he doesn't understand why people put slaves to work. He doesn't understand how the color of skin should change life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

The Freedmen's Schools

Read the article.

Before the Civil War black Americans were often denied an education. After the war there were nearly four million freed slaves. The war left former slaves, as well as many whites, without homes, enough food, or clothing. One way to help black Americans was to provide education to former slaves of all ages. Black people needed knowledge to interpret the meaning of legal papers and work contracts as they exercised their new freedom.

The Freedmen's Bureau oversaw the founding of schools for freed people in the South. It set aside formerly Confederate land to be used for school buildings. The Freedmen's Bureau, black Americans, and missionary societies gave money for schools. Over 1,000 black schools were built.

Teachers were black and white Southerners, both men and women, who could read and write. Most teachers in the freedmen's schools were white women who came south with missionary groups. The Freedmen's Bureau created or helped fund institutes for training teachers.

Answer the questions.

1. Why was there such a need for schools in the South after the Civil War? There were more slaves than white people. Once the Black Americans were free they didn't know how to read or write so they needed a teacher to teach them. White men and women did not purposely want to teach them. Missionaries helped teach.
2. Who paid for the schools that were built in the South? The Freedman's Bureau, and missionary societies.
3. Who taught in the freedmen's schools? White women who came south from missionary groups.
4. Why was it important to establish teacher-training institutes? To help the Freedman's Bureau.

Congress Intervenes

Write True if the statement is true.

If the statement is false, write the correction for the underlined words.

- True 1. Many of those who supported the equality of black and white citizens were influenced by the Bible.
- False; Republicans 2. The Black Codes angered Democrats in Congress.
- True 3. Northern congressmen did not think that those who supported secession should be rewarded with more representatives in Congress than they had before the Civil War.
- true 4. Southern states would have to be readmitted to the Union.
- true 5. Congress passed a bill that said states could not take black people's citizenship away.
- true 6. The Freedmen's Bureau provided needed services to freed slaves and poor white Southerners.
- False; defended 7. Certain Republicans proposed the Fourteenth Amendment to deny civil rights.
- false, civil war act 8. The Reconstruction Act of 1867 enforced laws that Congress had passed.
- True 9. The Reconstruction Act divided the former Confederacy into five agricultural districts.
- True 10. Southern states had to write new constitutions that guaranteed the rights of black men to vote.
- True 11. The House of Representatives voted to impeach President Johnson.
- false; not guilty 12. The Senate found Johnson guilty by one vote.