

I wonder why my mum does things with out asking me or my sister, she always makes me feel so uncomfortable when people give me a lot of attention because of her, I sometimes feel like my mum doesn't like me and I wonder if she never wanted me. Tears start to shed and I start to sob, I sit in the middle of my room and cry because of what she has been doing without my consent all these years. Vera opens the door and rushes to hug me, "I know how you it's ok, look if you want I can cancel the party. And I me and you can watch movies and play in the snow together" Vera said, with sympathy in her voice. I nod and smile, Vera wipes my tears away, "come down stairs, I'm going to make you a hot cocoa" She said, she stands up and gets out of me room. I stand up and walk out of my room, I walk down stairs and sit on the couch. I cover myself with a blanket that ,y sister left on the couch last night and turn on the tv to our favorite show. Two minutes late she comes back with a tray that holds two hot cocoa's, biscuits, and sugar cubes. She sets the tray on the coffee table and pulls it close to the couch, she sits next to me and covers herself with a blanket that was in the basket full of blankets. "Did I miss anything?" She asked me. "No but you missed the intro" I said smiling. We sat in silence and watched the television show and wat a lot of movies. I love sitting next to my sister and watching tv while drinking hot cocoa and eating biscuits. "You know you didn't have to cancel your party just because I was overstimulated" I told Vera. "Because you are more important than a silly party" she said, messing with my hair. "And your hair is also important" she said. I laughed, "Seriously, when was the last time you took your hair to the barber" She said. She started laughing and I laughed as well, I love when me and my sister hangout together like this. "Want to go play outside in the snow?" Vera asked me, I nodded and we got outside without a coat mittens, we just quickly put on our shoes with our blanket. We sit on the snow and look at the sky, "You know, we can go to that one store you've been wanting to go" Vera told me, "Nah it's fine, plus everything in there is really expensive and mum only left us with only eight thousand pounds, and I used spend about three pounds. And that left us with five thousand" I told her. She smacked her teeth, "are you mad at me?" I asked, worried that she might actually be mad at me scooched away a bit. She shakes her head, it almost looked like she understood the it was for groceries. "Let's go inside, it looks like there is about to be a blizzard” she said. “Can we go to Sinny’s house so he won’t have to worry about us?” I asked her, she nodded and we walked to Sin-U’s house and we both knocked on his door.