Trauma Cleaner/Tidies the Scene

- "I'm just here to do the dirty work, nothing more."

Tisha isn't too involved with the business, but she's always on call. Whenever they ask something of her, she does it to the best of her ability. Not because she loves her job, but because she has to. Thoroughly cleaning the mess Scraps leaves behind, not a speck of dna can be traced, not a piece of tissue can be found. If she doesn't do her job properly, things'll get messy.

The Hitman/Does the Killing

- "It's just a job, no hard feelings."

Scraps isn't a cold hearted killer, but she is a warm blooded predator. She always gets the job done, whatever the client wants, no matter what it takes. She tries to separate her personal life from her work, but this role doesn't treat her too kindly. But it doesn't matter, so long as it puts food on the table for her and Goob.

Black Hat Hacker/Provides the Details

- "So here is what you need to know..."

Brightney is the content provider for the group. RnD relay the basic background information on the quarry to her (who they are, relationship w/ client, etc.), and then she begins a deep dive into their personal life. She hacks into private messages, personal files, emails, accounts, etc. She then uses the information to map out how, when, and where the kill will occur.

The Ones with the Connections/Provides the Jobs:

- "I know a guy, who knows a guy..."
- "You ladies ready for another job?"

Razzle and Dazzle aren't part of the business, but are the main source of income. Without their underground influence, the Corpse Album would barely make ends meet. They give them customers and requests, and help sponsor their services. All they ask for is a cut of their revenue and special favors.
