

1: the rise of the cabinets

That meant war, and now I was on a mission to get revenge. But first, I needed to ask around for sightings. I asked Jennifer, Pompon, Evangeline, Amber, everyone and they all said one thing, "You mean the three cabinets behind you?" All 4 times I looked, and there were a lot of cabinets, a whole army in fact! Each time I kicked all of them to Brazil, Portugal, Spain, or Russia, four more appeared. It was like they were following me around on their little vintage legs and I didn't know. As soon as I remembered that they were probably teleporting behind me. I made a face and did some research on radioactivity and it turns out, drumroll me, myself, and I can do absolutely nothing about it. It is sad, I know, but I was determined to find out what could stop this cabinet madness, turns out the cabinets were 11 steps ahead of me.

2: those cabinets and more

I was on my bed writing down my planning, watching for any cabinet I might come across. I set the plan on my dresser to go and get lunch but once I had come back, it was GONE! As I searched and searched, I stopped. It was the cabinets! It was obvious that my research wasn't reliable at all, or so I thought. I might have better luck on a different search engine, but the chances of finding something reliable at this rate are slim. So I ran across the North Atlantic Ocean and across the Bay of Biscay into France. I know, I know, it was a horrible idea especially with the storm that was pouring down there, but when I had eventually made it I saw the... umm... let's just say MILLIONS of cabinets. Cabinets had replaced people and it was basically an empire believe it or not, the nuclear beam from that same explosion was still up and shining.

3: 5 times the cabinets

I ran, and ran through the buildings and trees until I got to the building where the cabinet was made... and there it was. The cabinet in which started this was inside with its own cabinet army. I charged at them while mumbling to myself "I should have rented out a flamethrower." They all came at once and soon, I was kicking cabinets to Antarctica, Bolivia, South Africa, Uzbekistan, and Palau. Once I kicked them all to about 152 countries, Their leader, the "Original Cabinet" had a trick up it's... shelf and teleported me to 1955. Dwight D. Eisenhower was president and I was genuinely confused because there were no computers and I was in the middle of a city. BadBoyHalo was born 40 years after this timeframe so there were no familiar faces. I was stuck with no one to help me and then suddenly, I looked up and saw Jennifer about to fall right on top of me! I dodge to the left and she falls on top of the conveniently placed mattress.

4: Summer of 1955

It kind of looked like Cincinnati but while I was looking around, she tried to escape the city. I ran after her and finally, at the end of the city, I grabbed her and asked "Jennifer, Why don't we find a way to get out of here?" To which she responded with "I am not Jennifer" dramatic music gasp I did not fall through the portal with Jennifer? Then who did I fall through the portal with because it was somebody. Right then, Ava ran up to me looking very tired. I knew she had been there all along but how did she fall through the portal with me? Then I remembered and knew the answer instantly and it all made sense! The cabinet had pushed Jennifer, Ava, Riley, and Pompon into different portals but there were only 3 portals and 4 people. So that could only mean that Riley and Jennifer are in 2 separate portals and I got pushed in with Ava. Well, we ended up having to run 2 miles out of the city before we realized we were lost in a city that looked like Boston Massachusetts.