

Story time

Today in music class I was sitting down and this girl next to me, playing her ukulele in the middle of class when she wasn't supposed to, and I kindly asked her to stop multiple times until she didn't and I got really mad and I asked her again to stop and she said mind your own business and I was really frustrated in my head. I was so mad at her . I have a really good come back but I didn't wanna say it because I knew she was gonna say something back so I decided to not say anything and when we were putting our chairs up, I put my chair in the front because there was no other chairs stacked. She put her chair right in front of mine, and I said you're supposed to stop the chair and she says geez I was putting my ukulele up don't tell me what to do . I was so mad I said to myself she is so annoying. She's always yelling at me and being mean and she looks at me and says I know what you said and then I said what and she says don't be stupid and walk storming off