

Meeting her

TK/ television kid

This is TK she is 13 and just as tall as a pen because she is from little nightmares. TK probably has one of the most bloody backstory's.

It starts off with her normal head and normal body going on a little mission, in that mission a piece of Machinery fell onto her and squished her head into pieces, but she was still a, I've like a zombie but still had her mind, hearing, sight, but not her voice. She found a tiny T.V in a little doll house and decided to make it her new head but that little T.V was a real T.V so she decided to do some little surgery on herself and connect her veins and her bones to the T.V and make her and it one.

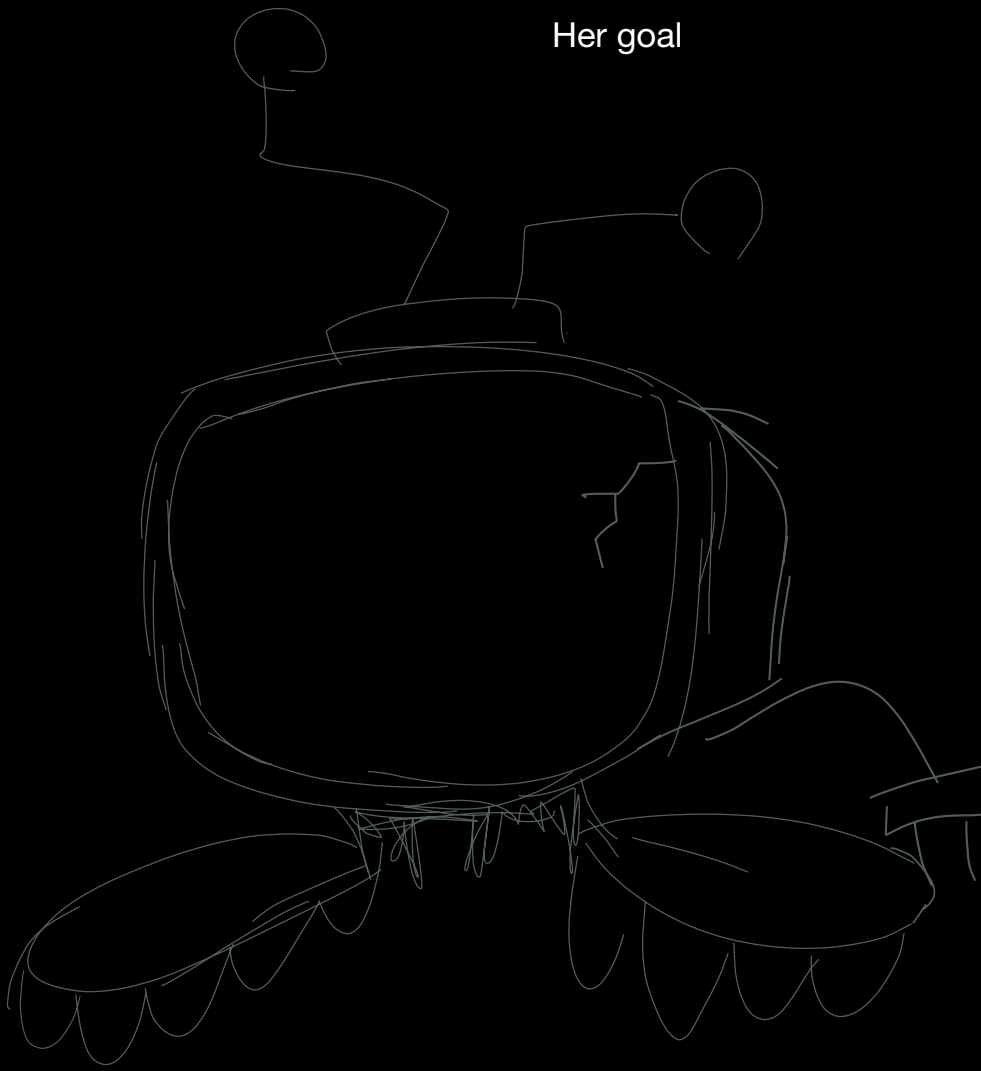

OG name: Nico

Her goal

Her goal is simple yet so hard

Her goal is to save her little brother maximum from this nightmare in due so she has to go through the Court room, the Jail, The Orphanage, The flee market, the theme park, and finally the wear house. A lot of work to do. And also fight off villains like the, Judge, the prisoners, the orphans, the police, the clowns, and the main villain the principle. She goes through all of this to only save he brother who has been taken to the wear house, her goal won't be easy but she will manage

The End Of The Story: after all of that she finally makes Maximum, leading him to the exit, but in all of that the principal make one last move chasing them through the wear house, knowing that they cant leave with it chasing them she makes one last move, she closed the door behind her brother and faced the monster head on.

The slender TV

36 years, 36 long cold years in this nightmare her body decaying slowly her T.V ripping off her, screen all cracked, her skin tearing off revealing nothing but wires that have grown all inside of her she still has her mind... but at what cost

Now stuck in this loop with nothing to do can't even feel her body stuck like this until time ends