

This will be my first year competing in Artfight!

For those of you who don't know, Artfight is an annual online event where artists fight with the power of art! Users are split into two teams and they both try to get more points than the other to win. To get points, artists draw the characters of other artists (each artist posts their own characters). You get more points for a more detailed drawing regardless of skill level. So it's really "draw fanart of other people's ocs" than "fighting!"
