What if I told you the "hero" of the story was actually a villain and the "villain" was actually not that bad.

Villains are always portrayed as evil even if they are just misunderstood. No matter if they are doing the right thing. Villains aren't always evil.

Hero's are always portrayed as good no matter how much property they destroy and no matter how many lives are risked. Because they catch the "bad guys."

Hero's are corrupt.