

Mood Tracker

Great Good Average Bad

The mood tracker consists of five horizontal rows of six square boxes each. Each box is designed to look like a Polaroid photo, with a thick black border at the bottom. The boxes are arranged in a grid and are held up by small black clothespins at the top. The rows are slightly curved, giving the impression of strings of photos hanging from a line.

