

Laura_mv

What happened was a report I made against a user named @roy_al. Me and a whole lotta other people banned her then she made an alt account. We were winning but then she started cussing again so we banned her again. The argument went too far then out of no where people started getting banned. We thought it was the notability admins (which it was) so we started making alts. But the next week RANDOM people started getting banned... popular people on notability. People that didn't attend our argument... then... someone found the purge note. A dude named skull or something got hacked and the hacker was banning people who didn't remix his purge not. It said THE PURGE HAD BEGUN! And people started disappearing from notability. I lost 85 followers. Others lost hundreds. I call it "the notability massacre".

U may be wondering why is this MY fault. Samcat. Well the hacker wouldn't have did it if the argument never existed. Why would a random hacker hack a DRAWING APP? Will the argument was just a distraction to then. I pieced it all together... anyone could have been the hacker to stop the arguing but they did too much.

That's pretty much sums it all up.