

ok, when I said I wanted peace I thought I would get it. Well, a mother's heart can never rest. Especially when your daughter calls you and tells you your son is going on a quest with complete strangers. Well that can cause a lot of panic very quickly. Audrey was able to calm me down a bit but I still worried. It wasn't until she called me like a week later that I knew he was ok. I almost fainted. And I don't faint. Having kids really changes things. I couldn't wait to finally have the two of them home and hear about camp. I never visited anymore except to pick them up. finally it came for us to pick them up. I got in the car with Dev who was holding my hand as we made the drive to camp. From there, we parked and waited for them to come. I saw both of their blonde heads come and my heart jumped in my chest. Then I saw another head. A black one. In between the two was a black haired kid who looked like Nico from years ago. He looked nervous and pale next to Audrey and Greyson. Greyson seemed to be comfortable around him and I could tell they had history. They walked up to us and a girl ran up to the Nico look alike kid. They exchanged a few words and it seemed that they too had history. It also seemed like Greyson, the new girl, and the Nico kid were... friends. Or even a tiny trio. My mind whirled with theories. The girl ran off. They walked up to us. Mom... Dad this is my friend and he needs a place to stay. Greyson puts simply. Gets it from me. I think and look at Dev. Didn't know this was gonna happen. Dev gave me the 'let's talk in private' look and we walked away a bit. The kids waited patiently as we talked. So, thoughts? Dev asks me. Greyson obviously trusts him otherwise he wouldn't ask. If I had to guess I'd say they had a quest experience or something close to it. I point out. True. He says with a smile. What? I ask him. How'd I get so lucky to marry such a smart kind and beautiful girl? He says. so are we're doing this? He says. I guess. If something happens then he can go back to camp. Dev says. I take a deep breath. Ok then. Let's not keep them waiting. I tell him and we walk back. I had doubts about this kid. He looked all dark and depressed. Nico wasn't that bad but still. Okay, he can come. Dev tells them. Greyson broke out in a happy grin. I offered my hand to the kid. His hand was icy cold. What's your name? I ask him. Erebus, Son of Hades. He says proudly. Well Erebus, its nice to meet you. Welcome to the family. Im Lura and this is Devin. I tell him and gesture to Devin. We're glad to have you kid. Dev says and flashes him a grin.

