

The stars on the under of her wings are based off sea-based constellations.

Twilight's Backstory:

Twilight had a NightWing father named Cosmos and a SeaWing mother named Azurite, who was a SeaWing princess. Cosmos and Azurite met when Azurite was on a trip to the NightWing kingdom (back when the NightWings lived on the continent). Azurite was meeting with the queen when Cosmos came in to tell the queen his new vision of a SeaWing bringing peace to the NightWings. He saw Azurite and immediately fell for her. Azurite did too. The queen realized that they were in love and decided she would send Cosmos to work as a NightWing ambassador at the SeaWing palace. Cosmos and Azurite journeyed back together. Cosmos stayed in the Summer Palace and Azurite would visit him. One day, Cosmos confessed his love. The SeaWing queen approved, and Cosmos became a SeaWing prince. The SeaWings were fascinated by him, as he had many visions and prophecies. People would come to him for advice, which was very helpful. They had a daughter, a princess named Twilight. She was named for the Twilight Zone and the time of night. She was very popular because she had the powers of a normal SeaWing, but also she could see the future, just like her father. She grew up learning about many subjects and was a very bright student. One day, Azurite and Cosmos believed that Twilight would be a great queen someday. However, she met an IceWing named Subzero who was exploring the kingdoms. They fell in love, but Cosmos didn't approve, as he was an IceWing. Azurite believed that they would be good for each other, but Cosmos wasn't having it. He told Subzero to stay away from his daughter, but they kept seeing each other. Cosmos became cold and distant from his daughter, and very angry. He tried to have Subzero punished for crimes he didn't do. But Subzero still loved Twilight and they were both determined to love each other for the rest of their lives. Also, the queen of the SeaWings, Queen Amphitrite, thought they were a good match. Subzero asked Amphitrite's animus, Poseidon, to persuade Cosmos' mind. Poseidon used one of Amphitrite's personal favorites, a piece of paper when written with a dragon's name, will make the writer like them. Poseidon said he was taking a poll on the most hated dragons, and Cosmos wrote Subzero on the paper. Cosmos immediately agreed that Subzero and Twilight would be good together and they were married. However, Twilight wasn't happy her dad was enchanted. She asked Poseidon to reverse the spell and said Cosmos would just have to deal with his son-in-law. So Poseidon reversed the spell, and Cosmos hated Subzero again. But he learned to like him, as he was his relative. Twilight and Subzero had a dragonet named Glowcaster. Twilight lived a long and happy life and eventually rose to the height of the queen's most trusted advisor.

This story was created by @artistickitten. Follow me for more!

