

I'm not an emotional person

Ever.

I never cry, never feel strong emotions, even when my Nani passed, although I didn't know her well.

I know I sound like a really heartless person, and honestly it's fine if you think that. Sometimes I can be heartless

But now I just can't hold my tears. My dog that I have had for 10 years will be put down soon. It's probably going to be next week or sometime after that.

My dog is really old and she has had a really bad back problem that has caused her to walk sideways and she is in a lot of pain.

I don't know how I'm going to deal with this, all I know is I need to spend as much time with my dog as possible because I love her so much and I don't know what I'm going to do without her Worst of all is knowing that I won't come home from my first day of high school to an excited little dog running to the door to see me.

I know how you feel and I hope that your dog will not feel pain. It is very sad when we have to see our pets go. I had to hear my (banned content wait hold up)

→ my first cat was named DJ. I got him when I was 2 years old. He had a hole in his heart and he knew too. That cat was amazing...

↙ SKIPPING ON: in 2016 he was dying. my mom couldn't afford a cat at that time to take him to the vet. But like the vet said, DJ had a hole in his heart, and it was only gonna get bigger as time went on.

↙ 2017: My mom was in the basement with him while DJ meowed very loudly. She kept telling him to "let go" and after a few minutes... it went silent.

↙ The only sound was our sobs. He was gone. We took him to my old football field, where

↙ At the bottom of it was a forest with a trail. We buried him next to the trail and put a flower on top of his grave. My dad buried him while me and my family stayed home. His meows were the most terrifying thing that I've heard. So yes, I know how you feel.
