

Guys my biggest nightmare happened irl. Someone followed my dad home and I was in the car with him I'm safe dw but I'm really worried about my parents, they are literally waiting outside for the person who followed us because her car has been driving by my neighborhood up and down. It all happened when we were stuck in traffic she had the audacity to get in front of my dad (keep in mind that the traffic was really bad) and my dad got in front of her because he didn't want any problems with police. Then she started crashing out and cussing out my dad in her car, she started doing that race car thing where when one race car tries to get the other race car off course. My dad picked up the past and she started to follow even more we got home and now she is driving up and down my neighborhood idk what to do I'm in instant panic, my little siblings are crying because they don't even know what's going on and my middle sister is so scared. I tried calling the police and they said that they are on their way. I'm so scared pls pray for me