

So I'm making this comment because I remember my parents told me something when I was little and I finally understand. They told me when I was 10 so almost 4 years ago that my friend (she's the same age as me) will never age again/ they will never turn 11. I finally realized that they mean she passed away. I'm so crushed I always thought she moved. But now I know she gone but I'm stilling keeping our promise saying that I will always come visit her. So know every once in a while I go visit her.