

When everything started settling down, I was able to get my bearings. Chiron, me, Evelyn, CJ (who had come running as soon as she heard), and Dev were all around unconscious Cypher. What happened? Chiron asked. It's just like the first time. I tell him. He nods gravely. How often does this happen? He asks. Twice a month... well... it's been happening more recently. Always the same thing. Dev says. Cypher groaned and sat up. He hit his head on his bunk and swore. If we had not been in this situation, I would've washed his mouth with soap. It was my punishment for bad language. CJ snickered. No need to speak like that. Chiron said with a sly smile. He turned to me and Dev. Let's talk about this... somewhere else. He says and we follow him. Grayson had fallen asleep thankfully and Dev held him as we talked. Chiron closed the door. So, do you know anything about this, for lack of better terms, problem? He asks. No, we know that this was the work of Thanatos last year. And that it's like the Oracle. But that's about it. I tell him. He nods gravely. We need to get to the bottom of this. Since you two know him the best and can help him I think it's appropriate to let you stay a few days while he recovers. Chiron said. My mood brightened. It would be nice to stay a few more days. Besides, I wanted to show Grayson the camp where he would maybe grow up one day. But he might not even be a full demigod so it was a 50/50 toss up. Rachel ran into the cabin. I watched her fiery red hair disappear into the wooden structure. I had no problem with her but she was just... interesting. Anyway, we continued to talk about what the prophecy might mean. Obviously it's about the twins and Knole. And their has to be giants as well. But Death Flowers? Being on the sea? I don't know. Dev said. Your right Devin. Chiron says. Rachel slips out and stands next to Chiron. Any news? She asks. Not much. Chiron says. She nods. Well, I'm gonna go get some lunch. Adios! She said and walks off. Yep, definitely interesting. CJ and Knole left as well but didn't ask us any questions. We finished talking and headed to the Big House. Chiron had prepared a room for us that came with a crib for Grayson. We set everything up then went to dinner. We found the twins and Knole at a table and sat down with them. I had brought Grayson's baby food with us and he happily started eating it. Are you guys leaving? Cypher asked us. I looked at Dev. Well... yes. Dev said. But not right now. Chiron said we could stay for a few days to see how you hold up. I interject. He nodded and put his head down. I know he hated to be babied but sometimes you can't help it. After dinner we all went our separate ways. Night

Grayson! Evelyn said in her baby voice she only used for him. He smiled at her. Night Ev. I tell her and give her a hug. Night Lura. She said and walked off. Dev and I walked back hand in hand to our room and collapsed from the days events.