

We drove out of Georgia and I thought I saw their car far ahead of us at one point. Going to Camp gave me mixed feelings. I loved Camp but somehow I knew that my time there was already stretched. Campers normally stay only until college then try to live a normal life. Me and Dev were some of the few who had stayed longer, mainly because we were lead campers and helped out in camp. But every year i worry that it'll be my last. Nika had already left and she lived in Indiana. She was working as a strategist for the military. She really enjoyed it. Anyway. I saw the sign for New York and tensed a bit. Dev sensed it and put his hand on top of mine. I look at him. He smiled at me and I relaxed a little. We drove the rest of the time and I fell asleep. I was woken by the car suddenly stopping. Lura! Dev says but Im already out the door. No no no no. I ran with Dev hot on my heels. I hope im not too late. I morph my glasses into my bow and gasp. Their car was in flames and Astraea was facing the Minotaur. The menace was always lurking around the camps border waiting to pick off campers. Astraea yelled at the twins and I ran up to them. I watched as Astraea kept to crush the beast but.... NOOOO!!! I say and watch it gut her. I shot my arrow. It hits and the beast crumples but the damage was done already. Cypher ran to Astraea and she crumpled to dust. Cypher was a hot mess and Evelyn was trying to help him. Not Astraea. Dev says quietly. tears brimmed my eyes as Dev held me. Come on, we need to get them to camp. Dev says his voice broken.