

So, I'm ok. I lost a lot of blood but while I was in surgery they gave me a blood bag and yk, surgery stuff. Let me tell you of my experience.

So first of all, they made me wear a blue gown which SUCKED! Then, they removed my bed from the waiting room and pushed me to the surgery room. It was pretty weird being in there for the first time. It has like... gadgets on the ceiling and walls, and there was a single narrow bed in the middle of the room. Idk why I expected it to be a much wider bed but come on it's CHOP. So when they asked me to lay on the bed, they took the other bed that I was on and I guess they went to put it back. Also a little background: my mom told the surgical team to put me to sleep using a mask and not a needle (which made me feel like a baby) AND she told them to figgin put me to sleep before the IV was put into my hand which, again, made me feel like a baby. Buuuuuuuuuut it was a good call because my left hand hurts like hëll rn. Anyways, they put a towel under my legs to elevate them and put the mask on my face. Listen to me. I took 4 deep breathes. 4!!!! And I fell asleep. I'm telling you bro, that stuff is NO JOKE! All I remember is seeing the 5 surgeons surrounding me like a cult ritual and then boom, I'm in a bed in another room. Like, a time skip. And the weirdest thing (to me at least) is that I was dreaming about One Piece and the dream lasted like 3 minutes. Like the what?

When I did wake up in a completely different room, my head felt like it was spinning while a nurse was clicking away at her computer, and the gas mask (or whatever it's called) was lying on my chest. I looked at the clock on the left side of the wall and, trust me when I say, I was surprised. From 5:47am to 11:39am (the last time I looked at a clock was before they took my bed to the surgery room btw). Like the what? Are doctors sorcerers??? How- huh- NANI???????????????? Bro the entire thing felt like a video game cutscene. Maybe I thought that because I played Spider-Man 2 for like 3 hours yesterday but it really did feel like a video game cutscene. I swear to you not, when I turned back around, the doctor asked me if I was "ok" like me looking at the clock executed her to move over next to my bed. And my burry vision + that entire mess = video game cutscene. My head is still freaking wobbly bruh. Ik I'm yapping a lot but just stay with me here. So anyways, I answered her with a "mmm" and she chuckled with "so cute" DA HËLL DO YOU MEAN "SO CUTE"? Then she hands me an apple juice box and shoves the straw into my mouth. I had no choice to drink it. I didn't eat or drink anything for hours. Then I used my hand to signal her to take the juice away from me and she put it on her desk, and continued typing. What type of NPC ahh- anyways while she was typing she told me that my mom was coming back to get me and I can change out of my clothes. Uhh lady? I'm not stripping down in front of you + how do you expect me to walk? My head is spinning off my shoulders! Then when my mom gets back, the nurse or doctor, whatever she was (I'm pretty sure she was a nurse because no doctor is going to take the time to give me apple juice), she says "bye Sam" -_- bro- ok so the dude with the wheelchair comes in and takes me and my mom to the hospital parking lot (which is underground) and we get in the car. Now I'm typing this. In my house*

I hate hospitals.

AND DON'T GET ME STARTED ON THE CRYING BABIES AHHHHHHHHHHH