

Would you be a bad person if you killed a bad person? After all, good people do bad things but bad people do good things. Wouldn't the world be better off with 1 less bad person? But if a good person killed a bad person wouldn't that make the good person a bad person? The bad person was a kid at one point most likely they were a good person at one point but something went wrong in their life to make them a bad person, so would it necessarily be their fault? Even so, they still did bad things but if you killed them you would be doing bad things, therefore you would be a bad person.