

Help! I was just taking care of my baby sister and we were alone in our parents room. I played with her, fed her, and kept her from rolling off the bed. For a moment I just messed around with her by rubbing her stomach and she kept giggling. I stopped and laid down while sitting her on my stomach. We kinda just looked at each other in the eyes for like 10 minutes while smiling. Okay... tell me why I started to become scared and almost cried. Also... why did with every passing second I look at her she became older, bigger, and started getting closer even though she wasn't moving, like she was just giggling. After that I immediately put her to sleep (sleep as in nap)
