

So I walked into my Language class automatically I noticed my crush standing at my desk I tried to play it cool as I inched closer and closer to him, once I got there I noticed a little paper on my desk my shoe was untied so ignored it and tied my shoe while he was standing there he walked off but stayed close to my desk.... When class started he left and I read the paper it said " I like you" my friend thinks it's from him but I think it's from the guy next to me because he may not know I know but his "subtle" hints are a little to obvious... when class was over it was break Time we have period 4&5 in the same class it's weird but whatever. My crush sticks in front of my desk again With his friends over one of his friends says "I can't believe you just said that in front of your crush!" Im not telling what he said but either way he usually Denys it but for some reason this time he didn't... he just said "dude shut up" and then him and his friends were playing around acting like they were giving each other something and saying I LIKE YOU ummmmmmm familiar??????????????

Honestly i hope its him who gave me it because like I litteraly ( why can't i spell) am so invested in this to the point where I got his number had my friend shove a note through the tiniest crack in his locker and have seen his underwear 4 times! Not on purpose though when im in class with him he likes to pull down his pants.... And yesterday i was right behind him and his friend pulled down his pants to where it was at his ankles!!!! I screamed and looked away lol. Also off topic but why is my friends boyfriend grabbing me by my waist and tickling me?