

Things in Harry Potter that don't make sense:

The fact that the characters needed permission slips 4 hogs Meade and not the triwizard tournament.

Harry and his 4 roommates return to the same dorm every year without adding their numbers.

It's never explained why Dumbledore and Voldemort are so close in power and how the power is measured.

Besides becoming an auror post Hogwarts options are pretty limited according to the adults in the series.

Not every class is useful in the series.

Remembralls don't tell you what you forgot so they're just useless.

Apparently Fred and George didn't pay attention to Ron in bed with another guy when they saw it on the map.

We don't directly learn the story of the portraits.

More coming soon!