

In the quiet of the night, I think of you,
Your laughter dances like a summer breeze,
Yet shadows linger, bringing me unease.

Your smile shines bright, a lantern in the dark,
But some of your ways leave a lingering mark.
I cherish the joy that your presence brings,
Yet struggle with the weight of some fleeting things.

You speak with passion, yet don't always see,
The tangled emotions that dwell inside me.
A whisper of longing, a flicker of pain,
In the melody of love, a bittersweet strain.

I admire your strength, your love, and sweet heart,
But sometimes it's hard when we drift apart.
In moments of confusion, where silence can grow,
I adore you so dearly, yet wish you could know.

So here in my heart, a delicate frame,
Of loving you deeply, while holding my stance.
Through the highs and the lows, I will always stay,
For love is a journey, come what may.