

Ok this is weird so I'm just gonna say it, no explanations: I wish I could live with the seminarians. I would have my own room. I could be like their little sister and I'd be part of a big brotherhood sort of thing where they all know each other and were friendly. Is that weird? I wanna be part of something, y'know? And I like man friendships. I like girl friendships too, but I feel like I would prefer only guy friends than only girl friends. Just a thought. Plus, I would have to pray every day. That would be great. To not have a choice. I could never be a priest because, well, I'm a girl and girls can't be priests. But I would be part of a group. Sigh. Whatever, never gonna happen. Literally impossible. 😞