Stage manager:
The person that is responsible for lighting, props, oversee sets, sounds, and other technical cues. They are like the right hand man to the director.

Scenic designer:
They design all of the things that immerse you in the production such as backgrounds, buildings, rooms, furniture, etc.

Props master:
They get all of the props for the production, make sure they are used properly (PROPerly hehe), organize them, and tell people how to use them and when.

Costume designer:
The costume designer is in charge of the costume team, they come up with the costume budget, and are in charge of fittings with the actors.

Choreographer:
The choreographer creates the dances used in a production and teaches them to the actors

Music director:
The music director leads the orchestra, and is in charge of any other music such as choirs and singers on stage.

Producer:
They hire all of the other people such as actors, choreographers, directors, etc.

Video designer:
The video designer is in charge of any footage or graphics used in a production.

Front of house staff:
The front of house staff ensure the quality of the auditorium and foyer

Dramaturg:
The dramaturg has lots of knowledge about musicals and productions and use this knowledge to help others to do their job better