

Songs in mean girls (part 4)

Whose House is this and More Is Always Better (cut) - whose house is this is very chaotic and I think only works on stage, otherwise it would probably fall flat. More is always better is a cute song and great moment for Aaron and Cady, but Chris Briney (Aaron Samuels, he also plays Conrad) always jokes about how he can't sing and the Cady's voice isn't suited for that song so it wouldn't make sense to include it World Burn- AHHHH!!! I love this song, and I think I love Renee Rapp's version better than the original. The vocals were so good, and the hallway scene was great. The movie did exactly what this song needed to be as amazing as it should be (and is).

Rather Be Me- OH MY GOD! this song was one of the many high points in the movie. Vocals were stunning. The running through the hallway made it cool and powerful, and it was just soooo good. I love this song and love this version. The movie really did it Justice and it was great.

Do this thing (cut)- this was probably cut so they could have the Linsey Lohan cameo which I'm not about, but I would have loved to see Kevin G. Do the rap in the movie like he does in the musical.

I See Stars- This number was just cute. It def wasn't one of the best numbers, but that's not the movies fault the song is just mid compared to the powerhouses in the show. However, it was great and the did a cute job with it loved the way they ended it.
