

Ok so this morning I went on to the lululemon app to see if they were in stock in the shirt I want. It's the swifty tech race length shirt in black or white so if they had either I would had been super happy. Well anyway I went on to the app..... AND THEY HAD IT IN WHITE!!!! so I was so happy and immediately texted my mom that it was in stock. And as I pressed send, it took me back to the app..... AND THEY WENT SOLD OUT AS I TEXTED HER. So now I can't get it..... I j don't understand why all these brands spend so much time making other products, when they could be making more of their best selling product. They make more money and their customers are more happy.