

Hey guys! Diary entry no. 2, I'm a bit bored! In case you don't know what I'm talking about, go read my first entry, it's under the #diary tag.

Honestly, my life is so boring.

So starting off...Valentine's day. I'm gonna be lonely, like usual, and it makes me kinda sad when I see other people are going to go on dates or spend time with an s/o. I know I shouldn't be jealous, but it's kinda hard not to be sad. I suggested maybe a Valentine's Day tea party with my friends, but I think we all know it isn't going to happen, especially because one of them is probably going to spend the day with her s/o. I just kinda wish I had SOMEONE to spend it with, but I never will. Not until I'm older, which makes me sad that I have to wait a few more years until someone actually cares about a relationship.

On a better note, that dizzy feeling I've been getting has lifted, so now I can go about my day normally, or as normal as possible. I got a zero on an assignment in my math class, so my parents kind of...grounded me from drawing because I've been focusing on that. Obviously I still draw anyways, but at home I've been finding other things to do, like that bag I made with my sewing machine a couple nights ago.

I also have NO inspiration for my Alice's Asylum comic, which makes me kinda angry. I watched the classic Alice in Wonderland and the live action with Johnny Depp (an absolute BAE). I think I should watch the other versions, but I don't know what streaming they're on, and if they cost money I don't feel like asking my parents to rent/buy them. My mom did suggest that I watch an Asylum movie though, which I think will be really fun because I love a bit of dark history.

Anyways, I think that's all I have to say. Pray some random hot guy or cute girl asks me to be their valentine!
Bye!

-Spaceboy