

@monk_monk, @vicky1104, job8-3,

You are all so fucking disgusting. I don't know what's wrong with you and it isn't my job to find out, but you have taken this way too far. I nor others have never once bothered you over your arrogant believes, going as far to respect your opinions in hopes you would take light from that and respect others the same way. However taking this kindness and then going around being xenophobic and nasty to the people on this app over something as silly as nationality and an opinion is absolutely horrific. I don't care if your parents are such morons to influence you to be a nazi, but it is your own fault to not at least care enough to do the proper research to realise the pretty clear line between right and wrong here. Even after acknowledging YOU influenced the debate and were unable to be respectful to someone simply responding to you you decide the best thing to do is grab all your friends and followers and gang up on psy_ch0. Again, fucking disgusting. As middle schoolers you should be old enough to know how to socialise with people online. It should be VERY clear that impersonating someone to act like they are calling you names is repulsive. What you are doing is defined simply as cyber bullying. Leaving messages to psy_ch0 saying things like "no one likes you" or shaming someone's partner for loving them is plainly wrong and childish. May I mention again this is all over something as stupid as a fucking opinion??

Saying "I'm sorry" and not even meaning it, wont make anyone with 2 brancells think your the victim. Using God as your message here is all the worse. God would never support anyone being such a dick to someone online over something so little. Never ever use your religion in shit like this because that would only ever disappoint God and put shame on the others in your religion. Something you should only use to spread peace and love, by the way. If your unable to do simple research and speak of politics peacefully, then don't engage in it It's clear you don't know what your talking about and making an account impersonating someone to make them look bad, only makes you look worse and it seems your not even sure what your really mad about.

If you can't handle simply being kind, then get off the internet and take sometime for yourself. This is ridiculous.

